DAN SMOOT

SECOND ROLL CALLS, 1964

In this issue, we tabulate the stand which U. S. Senators and Representatives took on 28 roll call votes (14 in the Senate, 14 in the House) during June, July, and August, 1964.

Our general guide in selecting roll call votes to tabulate is the constitutional principle of limited government. No matter what the purpose of an act of Congress, if the act is not clearly authorized by a grant of power in the Constitution, it is an unauthorized act. Herein, a conservative vote means a vote for the constitutional principle of limited government; a liberal vote means a vote for the theory that Congress and the President are not bound by constitutional contract but can do anything which the President and a majority of Congress may want to do.

Civil Rights Act of 1964—HR 7152

On June 10, 1964, the Senate (by a stand of 71 to 29) passed a motion by U. S. Senators Mike Mansfield (Democrat Majority Leader from Montana) and Everett McKinley Dirksen (Republican Minority Leader from Illinois). The motion invoked cloture—limiting debate on the Civil Rights Act of 1964. This vote is recorded in Column 14 under Senate—C indicating a conservative vote against invoking cloture.

On June 12, 1964, the Senate (by a stand of 61 to 31) defeated the Tower amendment to the Civil Rights Act. Sponsored by Senator John G. Tower (Republican, Texas), the amendment would have nullified the late President Kennedy's Executive Order providing for denial of federal contracts to business firms whose hiring policies do not coincide with the President's ideas about Equal Job Opportunities for racial groups. This vote is recorded in Column 15 under Senate—C indicating a conservative stand for the defeated Tower amendment.

On June 16, 1964, the Senate (by a stand of 52 to 45) defeated the Long amendment to the Civil Rights Act. Sponsored by Senator Russell B. Long (Democrat, Louisiana), the amendment would have provided that no one could be convicted of violating the Public Accomodations section of the Civil Rights Act unless willful intent to violate could be proven. This vote is recorded in Column 16 under Senate—C indicating a conservative stand for the defeated Long amendment.

On June 16, 1964, the Senate (by a stand of 58 to 40) defeated the Stennis amendment to the Civil Rights Act. Sponsored by Senator John Stennis (Democrat, Mississippi), the amendment would have permitted a State Attorney General to enter a case arising under the Fourteenth Amendment whenever the U. S. Attorney General enters the case. Under the Act as passed (without the Stennis amendment), the U. S. Attorney General may enter any case involving the Fourteenth Amendment, but a State Attorney General may not. This vote is recorded in Column 17 under Senate—C indicating a conservative stand for the defeated Stennis amendment.

On June 16, 1964, the Senate (by a stand of 62 to 35) defeated the McClellan amendment to the Civil Rights Act. Sponsored by Senator John L. McClellan (Democrat, Arkansas), the amendment would have forbidden the Civil Rights Commission to withhold testimony or evidence from courts or from congressional committees. This vote is recorded in Column 18 under Senate—C indicating a conservative stand for the defeated McClellan amendment.

On June 16, 1964, the Senate (by a stand of 45 to 24) defeated the Thurmond amendment to the Civil Rights Act. Sponsored by Senator Strom Thurmond (Democrat, South Carolina), the amendment would have authorized Civil Rights Commission members and employees to testify before congressional committees. This vote is recorded in Column 19 under Senate—C indicating a conservative vote for the defeated Thurmond amendment.

As passed (without the McClellan and Thurmond amendments), the Civil Rights Act permits the Civil Rights Commission to conceal any information it pleases.

On June 19, 1964, the Senate (by a stand of 73 to 27) passed the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The vote is recorded in Column 20 under Senate—C indicating a conservative stand against the Act.

On July 2, 1964, the House (by a stand of 294 to 131) passed the Act. This vote is recorded in Column 18 under House—C indicating a conservative vote against.

The Civil Rights Act of 1964 became Public Law 88-351 on July 2, when President Johnson signed it.

IRS Enforcement Funds

On June 23, 1964, the Senate (by a stand of 77 to 14) defeated the Proxmire amendment to HR 10532 (appropriation bill for the Treasury and Post Office Departments). Sponsored for the Johnson administration by Senator William Proxmire (Democrat, Wisconsin), the amendment would have increased Internal Revenue Service enforcement funds by 7.7 million dollars. This vote is recorded in Column 21 under Senate—C indicating a conservative vote against increasing IRS enforcement funds.

Debt Limit Increase

On June 18, 1964, the House (by a stand of 220 to 199) passed HR 11375, authorizing another "temporary" increase in the national debt (to 324 billion dollars). The Senate (by a stand of 61 to 27) passed the bill on June 26. The votes are recorded in Column 22 under Senate, and in Column 14 under House—C indicating a conservative vote against increasing the national debt.

Urban Mass Transit

The Urban Mass Transit Act of 1964 (HR 3881) became Public Law 88-365 on July 9, when President Johnson signed it. The law authorizes 375 million dollars in federal grants to state and local governments for planning, purchasing, and equipping transportation systems. It is thus a step toward socializing the transportation industry. Senator Frank J. Lausche (Democrat, Ohio) estimates that it will cost taxpayers billions of dollars within a few years. On June 25, 1964, the House (by a stand of 236 to 174) passed an amendment to the bill, extending application of the Interstate Commerce Act to all employees of local transit firms purchased or subsidized with federal tax money—guaranteeing to such local employees federal protection of employee rights (such as job security and fringe benefits). After accepting this employee rights amendment, the House (by a stand of 216 to 193) passed the Urban Mass Transit Act. In Column 15 under House, C indicates a conservative stand against the employee rights amendment. In Column 16 under House, C indicates a conservative stand against the Urban Mass Transit Act, as passed.

On June 30, 1964, the Senate (by a stand of 54 to 41) passed the Urban Mass Transit Act. This vote is recorded in Column 23 under Senate.

Subsidies To Ship Owners

On July 21, 1964, the Senate (by a stand of 56 to 30) passed HR 82, amending the Merchant Marine Act of 1936. HR 82 provides that American ship owners will be paid, from the federal treasury, the difference between actual ship-construction cost and the cost of the same ship if it had been built by the lowest bidder, when the lowest bidder is not used. Senator Frank J. Lausche (Democrat, Ohio) said this bill grants taxpayers' money to special-interest groups. The vote is recorded in Column 24 under Senate—C indicating a conservative vote against the special subsidies to ship owners.

Poverty Bill

The Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 (President Johnson's "Poverty Bill") became Public Law 88-452 on August 20, when the President signed it.

On July 23, the Senate (by a stand of 51 to 49) rejected an amendment to require the approval of state governors before the initiation of a federal "poverty" program involving any local or state government. This vote is recorded in Column 25 under Senate—C indicating a conservative stand for the defeated amendment. The Senate (by a stand of 66 to 34) also rejected an amendment to eliminate the Youth Conservation Camps from the "poverty" program. This vote is recorded in Column 26 under Senate—C indicating a conservative vote to eliminate the youth camps.

On the same day, July 23, the Senate (by a stand of 65 to 35) passed the Poverty Bill. This vote is recorded in Column 27 under Senate—C indicating a conservative vote against. The House (by a stand of 233 to 190) passed the bill on August 8. This vote is recorded in Column 25 under House.

Foreign Aid

On June 10, 1964, the House (by a stand of 236 to 181) passed HR 11380, authorizing foreign aid programs for the 1965 fiscal year. On July 1, 1964, the House (by a stand of 238 to 181) passed HR 11812, appropriating $3,316,572,400.00 to pay for the foreign aid programs authorized. In Column 13 under House, C indicates a conservative vote against foreign aid authorization. In Column 17 under House, C indicates a conservative vote against foreign aid appropriations.

Both bills (for foreign aid authorization and appropriations) are pending in the Senate.

National Commission on Technology, Automation and Economic Progress

On July 21, 1964, the House (by a stand of 261 to 76) passed HR 11611, a bill to create a special 14-member National Commission on Technology, Automation, and Economic Progress. The Commission would cooperate with cabinet officers in working on legislative recommendations to be made to the President and Congress by January 1, 1966 — recommendations involving the federal government in the planning of industry and labor forces for the future. The Commission was authorized to spend 2 million dollars.

In Column 19 under House, C indicates a conservative vote against establishment of the Commission.

The Senate passed HR 11611 by voice vote, but changed the bill to provide that the Commission would work not only with cabinet officers but also with the Director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. Since the Senate-passed bill was not identical with the House-passed version, HR 11611 was returned, for final passage, to the House, where it is pending.

Medical Care For Fishermen

On July 28, 1964, the House (by a stand of 202 to 170) passed S 978, permitting self-employed commercial fishermen (approximately 117,500 in number) to receive, at taxpayers' expense, medical care and hospitalization at hospitals operated by the U. S. Public Health Service. Opponents of the bill say it goes further (toward socialized medicine) than "the social-security approach to medicare." In Column 20 under House, C indicates a conservative stand against the bill — which is pending in the Senate.

Social Security Increases

In every election year since the Social Security Act was passed in 1936, Congress has increased social security benefits. On July 29, 1964, the House (by a stand of 388 to 8) passed HR 11865, increasing social security taxes, increasing benefits by 5%, extending compulsory coverage to self-employed medical doctors and interns, and making social security coverage available to police and firemen, if state and local governments approve. In Column 21 under House, C indicates a conservative stand against the 1964 election-year expansion of social security.

Wilderness Bill

On July 30, 1964, the House passed HR 9070, to establish a National Wilderness Preservation System. The bill places 9.1 million acres of federally-owned lands under a wilderness system controlled by the Secretaries of Agriculture and Interior — and authorizes future acquisition of private lands to be included in the system. All land in the system will be retained in primitive condition. No roads or other man-made construction or objects will be permitted except as desired and authorized by federal administrators. The President may permit prospecting for water resources, establishment of reservoirs, construction of public power projects and transmission lines, and construction of other facilities which the President considers in "the public interest." Such wilderness preservation legislation has been under consideration since 1949. This is the first time the House has acted on it. In Column 22 under House, C indicates the only conservative vote in the House against the Wilderness Bill: the vote of U. S. Representative Joe Pool (Democrat, Texas).

Ice Age National Scientific Reserve

In eastern Wisconsin, there is an area containing unusual geological formations resulting from the ice age. Most of the area is in a state park. On August 3, 1964, a majority of the U. S. House of Representatives voted for HR 1096, a bill which would have granted $800,000 in federal funds to the State of Wisconsin for operating the ice-age park — and an undetermined amount of federal money annually, on a share-cost basis with Wisconsin. Most of the land involved is in the district of U. S. Representative William K. Van Pelt (Republican), who voted against the bill to provide for federal participation. The House vote on HR 1096 was 206 for, 196 against. The bill did not pass, however, because it was called up for a vote under "suspension of rules" — which meant that a two-thirds majority (instead of a simple majority) was necessary for passage. In Column 23 under House, C indicates a conservative vote against federal participation in financing and operating the ice-age state park in Wisconsin.

Colorado River Storage

On August 3, 1964, the House (by a stand of 250 to 67) passed HR 3672, authorizing 47 million dollars for construction of three irrigation projects in the Upper Colorado River Basin. The area to be irrigated is used mainly to grow crops which the federal government says are already in surplus and which, in other areas, the government is spending great amounts of tax money to keep people from growing. In Column 24 under House, C indicates a conservative vote against HR 3672.

WHO IS DAN SMOOT?

Born in Missouri, reared in Texas, Dan Smoot went to SMU getting BA and MA degrees, 1938 and 1940. In 1941, he joined the faculty at Harvard as a Teaching Fellow, doing graduate work for a doctorate in American civilization. From 1942 to 1951, he was an FBI agent: three and a half years on communist investigations; two years on FBI headquarters staff; almost four years on general FBI cases in various places. He resigned from the FBI and, from 1951 to 1955, was commentator on national radio and television programs, giving both sides of controversial issues. In July, 1955, he started his present profit-supported, free-enterprise business: publishing The Dan Smoot Report, a weekly magazine available by subscription; and producing a weekly news-analysis radio and television broadcast, available for sponsorship by reputable business firms, as an advertising vehicle. The Report and broadcast give one side of important issues: the side that presents documented truth using the American Constitution as a yardstick. If you think Smoot's materials are effective against socialism and communism, you can help immensely—help get subscribers for the Report, commercial sponsors for the broadcast.

Laos Commission Funds

On August 12, 1964, the House (by a stand of 301 to 100) passed S 1627, which had already been passed in the Senate by voice vote. This bill enabled the United States to pay its share of the International Commission for Supervision and Control of Laos. The Commission is composed of representatives from Canada, India, and Poland. On July 23, 1962, a 14-nation conference at Geneva gave the Commission the task of supervising the new "neutralist" coalition government in Laos. The United States agreed to pay 17.6% of the annual cost of the Commission. The agreement (which has had the effect of giving communists control of Laos after millions of American tax dollars had been spent to save Laos from communism) was never submitted to the U. S. Senate for advice and consent. In Column 26 under House, C indicates a conservative vote against expenditure of tax money to implement an international agreement which has served the cause of communism, and which was never formally submitted for Senate approval as a treaty.
